- 0.5 FCE with a choice of: Preferably, a Physiology graduate-only course or Physiology Joint Graduate-Undergraduate Course.

Doctor of Philosophy – PSL Course Requirements:

A total of 2.5 full-credit equivalent (FCE) in Physiology courses, with the following guidelines:

- 0.5 FCE in PSL2000H - Seminars in Physiology PhD (mandatory for all Graduate Students in Physiology).
- 0.5 FCE in Physiology Graduate-only Courses.
- 0.5 FCE in PSL1066H - PhD Research Grant Proposal (mandatory for all PhD Students in Physiology).
- 1.0 FCE with a choice of: Preferably, a Physiology graduate-only course or Physiology Joint Graduate-Undergraduate Course.

Occasionally, students may be permitted to take a course offered by another department, to be counted toward their Physiology degree requirement upon the approval of their supervisor and/or supervisory committee and the Graduate Coordinator. This form should be submitted to the Graduate Office, and approval granted, prior to registration in such a course. In all cases, a minimum of 50% of all course requirements is to consist of credits in courses offered by the Department of Physiology.

Students do not need approval to take a course in another department if that course is not to be counted as part of their Physiology degree requirement. Students should be aware that such extra courses, while not counted as part of the degree requirement, will be counted in calculating GPA for scholarship competitions.
